Where’s home to you? Clapton in Hackney, in an old horse stable I converted over several years. Where has the most memorable night out you’ve had in London? Being from London I have had many memorable nights here. The trouble is all the best nights are difficult to recall. Last play/concert/film you saw? When I’m on the treadmill I have been watching GLOW on Netflix, which is fictional but based on a real female wrestling show from the 1980s. It’s hilarious. What would you do as mayor for the day? I would make STEAM (science, technology, engineering, arts and mathematics), as opposed to STEM, compulsory in schools. A combination of disciplines has been very important to my own creative process and I want other children, including my own, to have the same freedom of cross-disciplinary thought as well. What brings out the worst in you? Lack of sleep. Where do you go when you don’t want anyone to get hold of you? There’s a secret chamber in the studio I disappear into that no one knows is there.

Post Brexit Britain… Sum it up in a sentence… I think we may end up going from being called the United Kingdom to something like Lesser Albion.
